Getting To Know GSX

Introduction

Gold Secured Currency (GSX):

GSX is a token backed by assets through a trust, including alluvial gold mining and other base mineral mines, in addition to mineral rights to the land. Other products will also be included in the trust to create income supporting the GSX token and continuing its maintenance. The sales from GSX will fuel the investments that will allow businesses to be purchased, started, and run to add value to the trust. This trust is used in conjunction with aspects of a traditional cryptocurrency to result in GSX being a unique combination of a stable coin and a traditional cryptocurrency.

GSX utilizes both aspects to maintain a value that is backed by physical assets in its asset trust and that can grow in the same way as other traditional cryptocurrencies. Utilizing the Apollo blockchain that boasts extremely quick transaction speeds (sub-2 seconds), GSX is a token able to facilitate quick transactions for everyday use in various marketplaces.

GSX is aimed at long-term sustainable growth for investors, as well as offering a stable value suitable for use in rapid transactions as an actual currency.

Moving Forward

Projects Moving Forward

We are working hard to finalize deals to add new mines and obtain new land. We have at least half a dozen projects that we are actively pursuing and some of them are truly enormous projects. Negotiations and initiatives for these various projects are currently taking place in 4 different countries in Southern Africa. These projects include gold shaft mines, nickel ore projects, tantalum projects, and rare earth metals.

Advantages of GSX

The main advantage of GSX is that it is backed by an asset trust, meaning that if something were to happen, all the assets and mineral rights would be liquidated and go to the trust, which is then distributed to all of the GSX holders. In addition, profits generated from the investments create an infrastructure to support GSX. GSX is in the process of being developed into an actual currency, meaning that it will be used in the day-to-day purchases in the marketplace.

Ensuring Long-Term Coin Value

We are working tirelessly on various projects, from mining ores and gold, equipment, industrial, commercial and SCZ zones with governments. The most exciting part is that most of the projects that we are pursuing have billions of minerals in the land waiting to be extracted! Through these projects, we aim to turn GSX into a long-term investment, where holders have the assurance that their investment is growing at a stable and sustainable pace. Through the growth of GSX, we want to provide other economies the opportunity to grow their infrastructure with our rapid-transaction capabilities and the stable value associated with GSX. This will be achieved by simplifying GSX in such a way that countries which are in desperate need of a sustainable financial currency will be able to utilize GSX.

Long-Term Cryptocurrencies Differentiation

The main aspect that sets GSX ahead of other existing cryptocurrencies is that it is backed by an asset trust. GSX also runs on the Apollo Blockchain, which means that it will always be under two seconds because of its advanced database sharding. This means GSX has the needed technology to maintain and advance its use cases whereas other cryptocurrencies will bloat and get so large that they won't be able to be used in a marketplace and will only be able to be used as an investment. GSX, therefore, has the potential for wide adoption and in the long run, it could be used as a marketplace currency to power global economies. GSX is also constantly reinvesting profits to acquire more assets for the asset trust to maintain and grow GSX's minimum asset value.

Long-Term GSX Coin

It is interpreted as a long-term coin because as the revenue-generating investments that we make into the asset trust continue to grow, we can utilize the money made from them to operate at a higher profit and reinvest into more assets. This way we can have sustainable asset growth for the trust and GSX holders. The trust is being used in a way that actually augments the token like no other cryptocurrency, so we are looking to be continually growing our assets and investments in the long-term. The longer we operate, the larger and more valuable the asset trust and the more value we add to GSX that holders benefit from.

Asset Trust improves Investment Security

The use of an asset trust ensures that GSX's value will never collapse to zero, you will always have the money that was used to buy GSX and the investments will always ensure that GSX has value.

Social Responsibility

GSX invests in communities and strives to help those in need. This includes feeding programs, orphanages, job creation, medical and education assistance. We will be setting up humanitarian aid in the countries we will be operating in and other countries with the need as well.

We are committed to paying comfortable living wages in communities where others would exploit workers, many of which barely make enough to keep their families fed and sheltered. Supplying the workers of those areas with access to doctors, dentists and education, and assisting in community programs to help improve everyone's living standard is a primary goal wherever we go.
